EDITORIAL

The last issue of The Australasian Phonecard Monthly has arrived!! As announced last month, from October/November the APM will be replaced by a new publication, the Australia/New Zealand Phonecard Magazine.

Thanks for the kind words expressed to me by a number of dealers and collectors, both written and over the phone, in relation to the (almost) three years of monthly production of the APM.

Thanks also for the well wishes for the future and for the advice and comments in regards to the content and format of the 'Australian content' of the new magazine. It was pleasing to note the number of expatriate New Zealand phonecard collectors who have expressed delight at the commencement of a joint Tasman phonecard magazine.

Whilst the venture has some drawbacks to collectors and dealers, the main being that it is a bi-monthly publication, it is strongly felt that the negatives are offset by the positives.

A magazine of 48 pages plus, full of informative articles, extensively illustrated and in full colour!! Further, subscribers to the new magazine will receive two mint $10 "Independence Day" phonecards, one a Telstra Phonecard and the other a Telecom New Zealand PhoneCard. The two cards, when joined, will feature the destruction of the White House as viewed in the blockbuster movie which recently commenced in theatres in this country.

I have commenced writing to existing subscribers with the APM informing them of their credit situation with the ANZPM, ie. transfer of subscription from the APM to the ANZPM taking into account the retail price and subscription rate of the new magazine.

Please bear with me, and if your notice is not with this magazine, it will be with you soon. As you can hopefully appreciate the calculations are a time consuming task. No one will miss out on any magazine entitlements.

In regards to obtaining the two subscription cards, only those who subscribe or re-subscribe directly to the ANZPM for 6 issues will receive the cards. An existing credit with the APM, no matter how large, does not mean an automatic entitlement to the two $10 phonecards.

If, for example, an existing subscriber is owed 5 issues of the ANZPM or 8 or 9 (as a recent two year subscriber), to obtain the two cards he/she can either subscribe to the ANZPM and obtain a "credit" of 11 or 14 or 15 issues (as well as the two cards) or else purchase the cards direct from dealers who may subscribe to the magazine (and thereby obtain the cards).

There will be no direct sales of the phonecards to either collectors or dealers.

Please note that the Australian subscription rate for the ANZPM is A$38, not NZ$38. Unfortunately, the brochure sent out with the last issue of the APM indicated (incorrectly) that the rate for Australian subscribers was the same as for New Zealand and the Pacific.

As indicated last month, the magazine will be printed and mailed from Auckland, hence the extra rate for Australian subscribers.

Subscriptions to the ANZPM received to date will be honoured at the rate of $34 - which was the figure I indicated to subscribers whose subscription ran out with the August APM.

For your convenience sake, subscriptions can be sent direct to me and I will transfer them to Auckland. Whilst the APM is no more, for good or for bad, I am still here - be it with a modified role and (thankfully) work load!

As indicated, I am still passing on specific information to individual subscribers, to dealers and to clubs. Hopefully this will all be done in a timely and satisfactory manner.

Any queries or comments can still be directed to me as previously (see address, etc. opposite column). Please don't be 'put off' by the answering machine. There is still only one of me.

Sydney's BIG Collector Weekend

Sydney will host one of the biggest collector weekends on the calendar for Banknote and Phonocard collectors, on the 9th and 10th of November, 1996.

The Australian International Banknote Fair '96 will be held on Saturday, 9th of November and the Australian International Phonocard Fair '96, the following day, Sunday the 10th. Both fairs will be held at the All Seasons Premier Menzies Hotel, 14 Carrington Street, Sydney.

Banknote Fair

Many of Australia's leading banknote and phonocard dealers are expected to attend the International Banknote Fair. They should have excellent stocks of Australian and world banknotes including the latest issues, Australian decimal notes, pre decimal notes, pre Federation notes, cheques, military notes, Japanese invasion money, share certificates, bonds, ephemera, books and catalogues; plus a vast selection of world banknotes from all areas and eras.

Dealers attending the fair are very keen to buy banknotes. Collectors should bring along notes they may wish to sell. They may be pleasantly surprised at the prices on offer.

Banknote collecting is one of the strongest hobbies in the world today with the local Australian market booming. World banknotes are also very strong with many world collectors based in Australia.

Members of the International Banknote Society will have an information table and will be able to help those interested in collecting banknotes. They will also be mounting a large competitive exhibition at the fair.

Phonocard collectors will be well catered for at the Banknote Fair, with overseas, interstate, country and local banknote and phonocard dealers in attendance with good stocks of Australian and world phonocards for sale. Dealers will also be buying phonocards.

Phonocard Fair

The Australian International Phonocard Fair '96, will be held the following day, Sunday the 10th, at the same venue, the All Seasons Premier Menzies Hotel.

Australia's and New Zealand's leading phonocard dealers will be in attendance together with Telstra, who are expected to have a retail sales table and an archival exhibition. Several other agencies and Custom Phonocard issuers may also be at the fair. Leading hobby magazines will be represented and have sales and information tables.

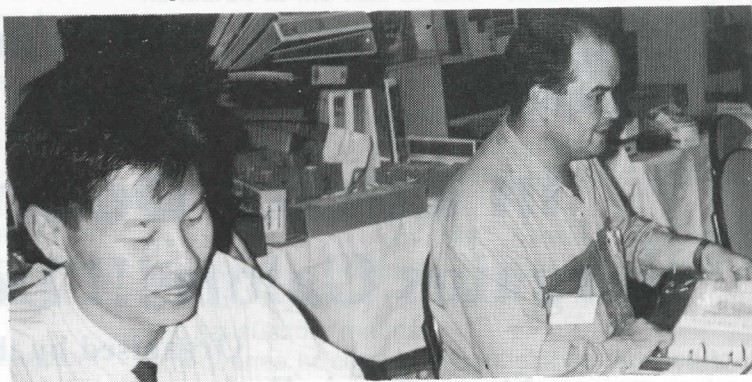

Collectors will be able to choose from one of the largest and most comprehensive stock of Australian and world phonocards on offer anywhere in Australia. Phonocard dealers will have all the latest issues, the latest packs plus excellent stocks of all Australian issues in mint and used at very competitive prices. Large stocks of world cards will also be available, especially thematic cards which are proving so popular today.

Due to the very competitive nature of dealer's prices at present, collectors should be able to find and negotiate many bargains.

Both fairs will be held at the All Seasons Premier Menzies Hotel, Exhibition Room, Lower Ground Floor, 14 Carrington Street, Sydney, and will be open to the public from 10 am to 5 pm each day. Admission cost is $2, with children under 12 being admitted for free. For further information contact M.E.F. Books, PO Box 523, Narrabeen, NSW 2101. Telephone: (02) 9913 3036

US VISA CASH CARD News

This month we take the opportunity to answer some of the often asked questions about US Visa Cash cards.

Pricing

US Visa Cash cards were never available to distributors at face value, and this meant that particularly low value cards were always sold at a substantial premium over face value. However, recently a number of developments have helped bring prices down.

First, the Australian dollar exchange rate is now more favourable than a few months ago. Also, at least one bank (NationsBank) has substantially reduced its handling fees. Naturally these factors only apply to general issue cards that are still available from the banks - special issues (commemorative and promotional cards) that are already scarce and in strong demand are steadily moving up in price.

You will see some of the new pricing for general issue cards in the advertisement on the back page of this issue.

Card Expiry

As with the Australian and New Zealand Visa Cash cards, all US cards carry expiration dates. These are intended to avoid problems of compatibility with the next generation of card readers, making sure that current cards can no longer be used once the terminal technology has developed beyond their chips.

It is important to remember, however, that a mint card does not become a used card upon expiry. All card readers will show up the difference between a mint (expired) card and a card where the value has been used, and it is a common belief that mint expired cards will continue to fetch a premium over used cards (note here for example prices on the expired Australian in-house test cards, where there is a substantial difference between mint and used prices).

While it is perfectly understandable that collectors do not wish to purchase a large range of high face value cards only to have them expire, a distinction must always be drawn between common cards and those with inherent scarcity. There appears little doubt (witness again the expired Australian test cards) that scarce cards will hold their value, whether expired or not.

Low Face Value Opportunity

USA Visa Cash cards have never been offered in used condition, for the simple reason that most of all cards were (and continue to be) retained as a souvenir by the user. The attractive Olympic images featured on most US cards has ensured that non-collectors nevertheless retain their used cards.

The most economical way to collect a range of current USA Olympic images is to focus on the low face value cards, particularly the US$10 and US$20 denominations. Many collectors here and overseas have done just this. As a result available quantities of these cards are drying up much faster than US$50 and US$100 cards with similar issue quantities. Combined with the better prices now available, the opportunity exists to put aside some excellent Olympic thematics that will enhance any collection.

The Future

The Atlanta Games were an excellent trialling ground for Visa Cash, but with their conclusion the obvious question to ask is: "what will happen in the future?" While one bank in particular (Wachovia Corporation) seems to have finished its Visa Cash card program, another (First Union) is actively promoting the product through a launch of two new promotional cards. We will have to wait a little longer to judge the pace of expansion in the USA.

Cybercash

A new promotional issue from the First Union Bank, the set comprises a US$2 and a US$5 card with the well-known "falling coins" design. Designed to be given away to encourage use of the system, there were only 10,000 of each card produced.

Visa Travel Money

This is a new promotion launched through Barnetts Bank in New York. This is not Visa Cash and the cards have no chip, but is a very similar product. A card like an ATM card is loaded with value that can be used to access cash from ATMs world wide without the user having to access their particular account. The program is akin to travellers cheques, but with the ATM convenience. At present there is a single promotional card (5000 issued, no face value), but no further news.

AUSTRALIAN NEWS UPDATE

TELSTRA

The following is a Media Release provided by Telstra on the 20th of August '96, confirming what has been 'tipped' for some time now - Telstra's move to smartcards. It is reproduced in its entirety.

SMARTCARD TO BECOME A REALITY FOR AUSTRALIANS

The success of Telstra Phonecard has led customers to look for opportunities for wider applications. The technology to achieve this has been identified by Telstra to be Smartcard.

National Sales and Services Manager, Telstra Payphone Services, Grant Burtenshaw said that Telstra is examining the feasibility of the existing Phonecard being replaced by disposable smartcard technology.

"The millions of Australians who are already regular Telstra Payphone users will welcome a new style payment card that can continue to deliver easy access to payphone calls, via more than 30,000 Telstra card operated payphones, plus a range of new applications", Mr Burtenshaw said.

"Last year more than 13 million Phonecards were sold and Telstra has issued more than 1 million Telecards in the market", he said.

"More than 40 per cent of Australians have used a Telstra Phonecard, and this strong customer base gives Telstra a competitive edge when it comes to rolling out a new payment card".

"Telstra also enjoys the support of the most extensive payment card distribution network in Australia with more than 17,000 retailers currently selling Telstra Phonecards".

"Customers and retailers are asking to be able to use the Telstra Phonecard for many functions including purchasing goods from vending machines, paying for parking and transport, entertainment, and fast food, and we are working closely with all group leaders in these industries as we move towards implementation".

"And with other exciting applications for Telstra's smartcard in development such as multi-media, the future of Telstra's smartcard is extremely exciting".

Mr Burtenshaw said Telstra is already the market leader in payment cards in Australia, not only through Phonecard, but also popular products such as Telecard, Telstra VISA card, Homelink and the new PhoneAway card.

"Telstra's experience, customer base and retail distribution network has Telstra well placed to be the leader in the Australian smartcard industry" Mr Burtenshaw added.

The potential move towards Telstra smartcard will enable information and money to be stored on a computer chip embedded on cards. This will allow Telstra customers to use the card for a variety of retail purchases and services, including public transport, newsagents, cafes, and, to make calls from Telstra public payphones and over time, to access home shopping from the internet and broadband multi-media.

My thanks to Sharyn Howell, Telstra Public Relations for a copy of the Media Release - Ed.

Whilst it was only a matter of time before Telstra became "smart", the interesting question, "will they be multi purpose cards when they do?", has certainly been answered in the affirmative.

I understand that the phase in of chip cards will commence in the April-June period of 1997. I will keep readers informed in the new magazine of what is to transpire - Ed.

Official issues

Telstra will be releasing a three card series ($5, $10, $20) which celebrate Christmas with a classic Australian flavour, including a kangaroo bearing gifts and Santa sitting on a glorious Australian beach.

Also included in each Limited Edition Folder, which will be available from the Phonocard Collector Service in October, is a fourth ($2) Phonocard. Only 3000 folders will be issued at $49.50 each.

Advertising & Promotional Releases

Austel

The 7th Phonocard in the Austel series will be released in October, advertising telephone changes on the Queensland Sunshine Coast.

20,000 of these cards will be distributed in Queensland, with 4000 available to collectors through the Telstra Collector Service.

Telstra Payphone Services

Telstra is releasing their own advertising phoncards in October, spreading the message that Phonocard and payphones are the best way to make a call when out and about.

This three card series (5, $10, & $20) features campaigns that can be seen in payphone cabinets around the country. (The $5 image is not available at the moment).

4000 of each card will be available from October through the Telstra Phonocard Collector Service.

Royal Adelaide Show

This $5 Promotional Phonocard was produced to celebrate the Royal Adelaide Show. 2000 were sold exclusively at the Show, with an additional 2000 now available to collectors through Collector Services.

Olympic Athletes

To celebrate the return of Australia's Olympic athletes, Telstra produced two special Phonocard series in late August.

The first was a three card Welcome Home Parade series ($5, $10 & $20), featuring illustrations of Australia's most successful sportings events.

50,000 of each card were sold through retailers situated on or near the Welcome Home Parade routes around Australia, with 5000 individual cards now available exclusively to collectors through Telstra's Phonocard Collector Service.

Also produced was a three card (3 x $5) series which was packaged and given to guests attending the Official Welcome Home Dinner in Sydney.

Only 2000 packs were produced and feature bronze, silver and gold phoncards, listing the event winners of each medal. 750 of these packs are exclusively available to collectors through Telstra for $77.00 (plus postage & handling). Orders are to be faxed to FAIRS!!

Why would anyone want to organise a Collectables Fair. Dan O'Loughlin (Wishart Phonocards) and Michael Vickers (Cut Price Coins) did so and have gone from strength to strength. I asked Dan to provide me with some thoughts from his perspective and he has kindly done so - Ed.

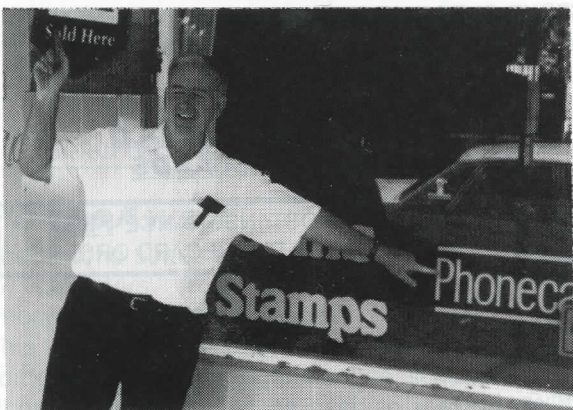

It was one of those days when life was good, sales were solid and the customers were happy. I was at Michael Vickers' shop at Brighton north of Brisbane. It was a typically warm Queensland summer's day in November, 1995.

Michael and I had been discussing everything from Phonocards, Stamps, Coins and anything else that had the suggestion of stimulating the collectable's hobby as well as providing a financial return. Suddenly, Michael had his first entrepreneurial brainstorm! He asked me what I thought of the idea of running a fair jointly with him at the Sandgate Town Hall - Sandgate being a suburb of Brisbane.

Michael in the process of having a brainwave!

I did not shudder but must have looked a bit anxious as Michael proceeded to outline his ideas. He was convinced that Brisbane needed a local Fair to give collectors a better opportunity to obtain their needs, be it stamps, coins, phonecards or other collectables.

Dan astounded at Michael's brainwave!

I kept thinking of all the pitfalls that Mark Freehill and Ian McDonald had mentioned to me at Fairs of theirs that I had attended. But like most other times, one gets caught up in the excitement/anticipation of the overall picture and conveniently forgets all the work that has to be done to make a successful Fair. To cut a long story short, the first Fair in February '96, at the Sandgate Town Hall came and went, leaving us both with a desire to stage more and more fairs, wherever and whenever. The truth was, the first Fair was moderately successful and most of the nineteen dealers and clubs that were there, came to our next Fair. 330 collectors attended the Fair and appeared to enjoy it.

Since then, Michael and I have staged a number of Fairs, most of which were successful.

I firmly believe that our Fairs do fill a local void in enabling both dealers, clubs, and to a lesser extent collectors, to share ideas with a view to improving the way things are done. In an attempt to do this I have encountered a number of people who do not want to change and are very determined to prevent it occurring.

Time will be the healer, I am confident that if all hobbies are supported equally a few bouquets may come our way.

With hindsight, some of the problems we have encountered should have been dealt with differently, but I am confident that our now permanent Fairs at Sandgate will only get better and better. I do hope that the signs of a strengthening market continue to be there. A lot of collectors share my views that a true collector market is evolving.

However, the market is not self regulating. It requires honesty and integrity on the part of the dealers and sustained interest and commitment from collectors. There is still plenty of work to be done in that area.

Michael and I are staging a two day Stamp, Coin & Phonocard Show at the Caloundra Cultural Centre on the Sunshine Coast on 11 & 12 January, 1997 and are looking forward to seeing you there.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir,

Firstly a "thank you" and "congratulations" on the excellent effort you put into the APM over the last few years and I hope the proposed merger with the New Zealand publishers will result in an even better magazine for everybody interested in the hobby of phonecard collecting.

In contrast, Telstra seems to be going from bad to worse! For an organisation that makes hundreds of millions of dollars profit, I find it incredible to read in their Australian Phonecard Bulletin, No. 13 (August 1996) on page 4, that people who have not made a purchase within the past six months will not receive future issues of the Bulletin.

Can't the people who run this organisation imagine that lots of people collect and buy their phonecards from other outlets than by standing order?

I myself know of a dozen other serious collectors who don't buy direct from Telstra's standing order service, their main reason being the availability of new issues. In nearly all instances of a new phonecard or pack coming onto the market it is possible to buy them from your local phonecard reseller (Newsagent etc.) well in advance before we, the subscribers to Telstra, wait for weeks and sometimes months before we receive them.

Also, all relevant information on forthcoming issues is always obtainable much earlier from The Australasian Phonecard Monthly.

Another contradiction is on page 9 of Telstra's Bulletin No. 13, where they try to entice new customers into believing that they will get new phonecards much quicker by considering a standing order arrangement. Well, I for one don't believe it!

Anyway, whatever the hurdles, somehow I still keep on buying and looking for our generally good looking Australian phonecards and so do my two boys, James and Michael, who sadly won't be getting Telstra's Australian Phonecard Bulletin anymore, just because I haven't bought directly from Telstra - what a shame!

H.G.A. NSW

The above letter sums up the feeling of collectors from whom I have received a number of calls and letters in the last week.

Readers of the APM over the last few years will possible recall that I have been critical of Telstra's mailing database (for the Bulletin) for some time, ie. in that the company often used the total number of names on it as an indication of the Phonecard collector base in this country - 35,000 plus.

I think everyone is well aware that the database is grossly inflated by a duplication of names, fictitious names, family pets being listed, etc. Why? Mainly, to access any 'freebies' that Telstra may provide at some stage or other.

I can see a need for Telstra to cull this list as undoubtably they could remove about 20,000 names and still cover quite effectively the needs of the genuine phonecard collector, and I include those who collect used cards only and would never contemplate purchasing a mint card from either Telstra or another source.

The cost of producing the Bulletin, whilst seemingly minor when compared to profits generated by Telstra overall, is expensive when taken in the context of the operation of the individual unit, in this case Phonecard Collector Services. This unit is not generating the income it was some 18 to 24 months ago and its operational costs are mounting.

At the present stage, with all the uncertainty regarding Telstra's overall future and specifically, that of the Phonecard Collector Service, the 'bean counters' are hard at work.

Whilst I can see the need for Telstra to cull its mailing list, and they appear to be using the most effective means of doing it, undoubtably many true phonecard collectors will be greatly disadvantaged.

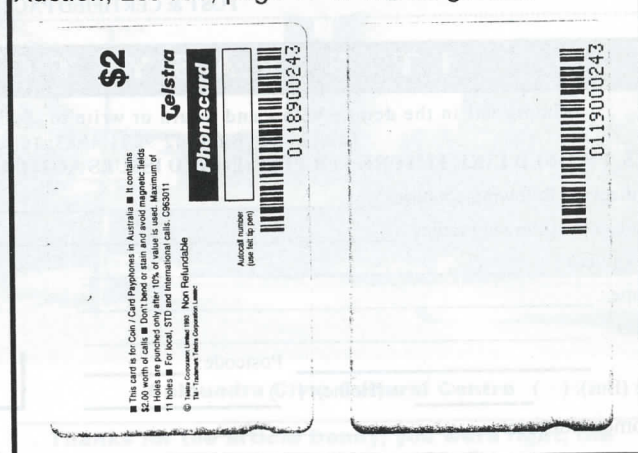

Whilst many phonecard dealers stock copies of the Bulletin and make them available to collectors, obviously, not everyone has access to such dealers. Perhaps the purchase of a $5 card from Collector Services every 6 months may well be worth the cost, so as to remain on their mailing list for the Bulletin. My interpretation is that the criteria for continued receipt of the Bulletin is that "a purchase" must have been made from Telstra in the last 6 months, ie it is not a requirement to be on their Standing Order list.

I really don't see what other options collectors who want to guarantee receipt of the Bulletin have.

SIGHTED

Chris Williamson from Haxby Collectables sent me a copy of the reverse of a $2.00 Cambodian Phonecard from the early 289 series.

Unfortunately, the copy is not such that it can be reproduced in the magazine.

The card has no bar code on the reverse and the font used to print the serial number 0028952863 is 50% larger again than any other card I have seen in the same prefix number!

Has anyone seen this anomaly in the particular prefix run?

QUERY

At a recent Fair that I attended in Brisbane, Terry Dell from Golden Beach in Queensland, handed me a pair of Russian (I think) phonecards for viewing. A serial or phone number has been hand written within a rectangular box at the bottom of each card.

More unusual however, one card has what appears to be the value of the card handwritten on it, whilst the second has the original value 'crossed out' and a new value, again, handwritten in.

Can anyone shed any light on these cards? Cyril, where are you?

SYDNEY STAMP CENTRE

Michael Hudson advises that the Sydney Stamp Centre has been appointed Australian Distributor for Telecom Fiji. See the advert at page 13 of this magazine.

A feature article on the phonecards of Fiji will appear in an early issue of the Australia/New Zealand Phonecard Magazine.

VISA CASH HONG KONG

Featured below is the first Hong Kong Visa Cash card as jointly launched by Standard Chartered Bank and the China group of banks on 1 August, 1996. The card is disposable and has a denomination of HK$200 (about A$36).

The print run is not known at this stage.

(Thanks to Richard Siu Leung Hing for the card)

NEW PHONECARD/CD & PHONECARD/PD PACKAGES BRING RARE 1956 ELVIS CONCERT EXTRACTS & INTERVIEWS TO COLLECTORS

Dr. Gary S. Felton

In co-operation with ERIKA Records Inc. and The Creative Radio Network, AmeriVox has released Windows of the Soul, a wonderful new set of Elvis phonecards. This gem of a pair commenced distribution throughout the world beginning 1 August 1996 and are obtainable in two different product carriers, namely compact disc and picture disc.

Each format brings to the collector and fan a special recording of Elvis at age 21 in a 1956 interview which never before has been released and a recording of concert extracts of Elvis introducing his material from a special performance the same day as the interview, both taking place in Little Rock, Arkansas.

Interview

The lengthy interview is conducted by disc jockey Ray Green who also introduces each album product in his own words with 'the story behind the story' about how he secured permission to interview Elvis at a time in history when the Colonel had put a complete stop to Elvis interviews.

Part of the story is about how Ray, Elvis and the Colonel took an unplanned 45 minute round-about path to deliver Elvis to Robinson Auditorium, during which time Ray captured an informal 'interview' about all kinds of topics.

Ray Green and Elvis back stage

A formal interview, which is preserved in this recording, actually followed the first show that night of 16 May, 1956, and gives us a splendid picture of some of the personal and professional concerns and interests of Elvis at the earliest moments of his developing career and entry to the world of entertainment.

Concert

In the extracts from the concert we are given a special opportunity to hear directly from a new, young, unpolished Elvis who is at times right in tune with his audience and at other moments nervous, inexperienced and ill at ease. Through it all we can quickly feel the realness and sincerity of an evident star in the making.

All of these materials have been held in private storage for the past 40 years and only now have been made known and available to the public in Windows of the Soul.

Background

In addition to the above recorded contents, each package includes extensive liner notes/background information about the recordings, the back story, and a photograph of Elvis and Ray Green shown together during the interview.

Phonecards

This is not all however, as both items also feature a rare, strikingly attractive working phonecard. The compact disc phonecard features a previously unpublished black and white photograph of Elvis at a 1956 Memphis Polio Drive charity event.

The picture disc option provides a different Elvis phonecard showing a closeup of Elvis' face extracted from a publicity photograph for the 1956 movie, 'Love Me Tender'.

The American version of each package offers a phonecard with 5 minutes of time and the international version of each offers a phonecard with 1 Unit of time.

World Firsts

Windows of the Soul collectively brings for the first time to Elvis fans, music collectors, and phonecard aficionados, 6 approved Elvis world firsts:

- First release of the 1956 interview;
- First release of the story behind this fascinating story;
- First release of concert extracts from the 1956 concert;
- First issue of the photograph of Ray Green and Elvis together;
- First issue of a specific 1956 photograph of Elvis either in colour or black and white;
- First time there has ever been an Elvis phonecard with any previously unreleased Elvis material.

In addition, with the picture disc, this is the first time ever that a shaped (non round) Elvis picture disc has been released with the permission of Elvis Presley Enterprises Inc.

A Young Elvis

Ultimately, what makes this material so rare is not only its never having been published or released before, but the splendid reading that each component of the package individually offers about Elvis when he was young, inexperienced, open and vulnerable.

We hear, and see, and hear told about, the genuine person in his most natural state. Each of these elements is a different view of Elvis through windows of the soul of the world's most photographed and most internationally recognised person ever.

What emerges from the intermixing and interaction of all these parts is a compelling profile of Elvis, one which is unlike any presented before.

Professional

Overall, the products are special prizes to have in one's collection, particularly since they are such a rare and fascinating combination of individually never before released materials. They will please any collector both from the standpoint of listening as well as from that of viewing since the resultant graphics come from the finest professional touches using the best film and highest quality printing methods available.

In addition, the mixing and editing of the recordings was put in the hands of the industry's best, The Creative Radio Network.

To obtain these products contact your local record or compact disc store and if you do not find them you may call:

AUSTCAL Enterprises Pty Ltd in Brisbane
(Telephone: 07 3379 9554 or Fax: 07 3379 1717)
for further clarification and information about them.
In order to be able to reach all collectors and consumers who might find interest in these windows of the soul and despite their rarity, prices are being held to standard commercial levels, so enjoy the listening and the viewing!

CanaVox

The new CanaVox card marks the entry of AmeriVox into the Canadian arena with a total multi-level marketing program and a Canadian switch.

The CanaVox prepaid phonecard provides Canadians with the same great savings their American neighbours already enjoy. CanaVox cards may be used in both the United States and Canada and also to call any other country in the world. Featured below is the first of these phonecards.

This cards can be used in the USA & Canada to call anywhere in the world.

There were 5000 of these cards produced on 19 July 1996.

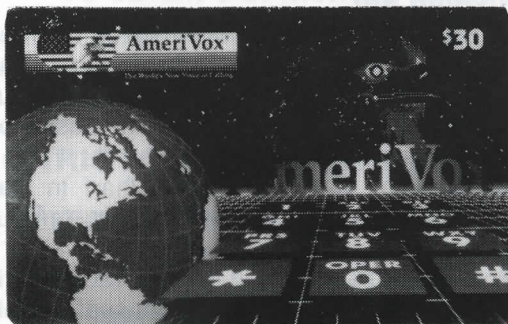

AmeriVox International

AmeriVox International makes it easy to call from any touch phone in the world to any country.

The International call back card featured below actually has an error on the reverse side.

The PIN was printed with only nine digits rather than the correct thirteen digits. 5000 of these 9 digit PIN cards were printed but only a 'handful' have been distributed privately.

I was fortunate to obtain one of these error cards.

Company Profile:

HT TECHNOLOGIES, INC.

HT Technologies, Inc. is a leader in the pre-paid phone card industry providing a full range of debit-card platforms for telecommunications services, marketing, production, and creative services to over 1000 corporate clients and distributors world wide.

Headquartered in San Francisco, California, the company was founded in 1993 by telecommunications industry veterans Dan Tudor and Peter Heitmann. HT is focussed on the Speciality Advertising/Promotional, Travel and Collector niches of this rapidly growing segment of the telecommunications industry.

The pre-paid calling card industry is estimated to have reached ten million dollars on a world wide basis in 1995 with growth in the U.S. market projected to be 50-100% per year through the end of the century.

Special Edition Cards

HT has issued special edition promotional cards for a blue chip list of sponsors including Coca-Cola, Eastman Kodak, Pepsi Co., Philip Morris, Nike, Volkswagen, BMW, United Airlines, Guinness Stout, Visa, Budweiser, and many more.

Because of these major sponsors, many of the special event cards become valuable in the phonecard collector market.

Other Special editions during 1995 have included commemoratives for James Dean's 40th Anniversary, Babe Ruth's 100th Anniversary and the 50th Anniversary of the United Nations.

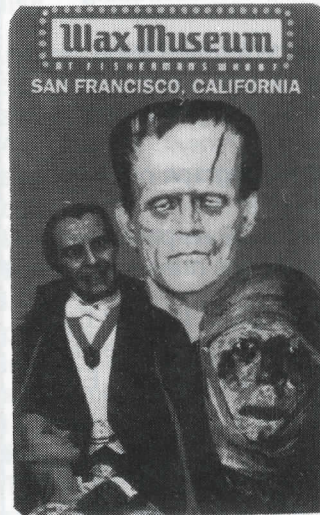

Wax Museum Set

A recently released 3-card set was inspired by three different wax museums in California. The Movieland Wax Museum card depicts three famous western movie stars, John Wayne, Clint Eastwood and Kevin Costner (see cover).

The Wax Museum at Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco portrays three monsters from famous horror movies.

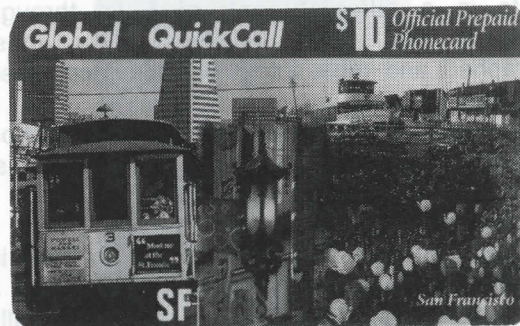

Finally, the Ripley's Believe It or Not Museum in Buena Park features strange and unusual people that appeared on the popular television show. There were only 1750 of this set printed.

This card was taken from a painting by Rico Fonseca, the artist of Greenwich Village. There are over 50 celebrities on this 4" x 6" (100mm x 150mm) phonecard. There were 2500 Golden Years cards printed with 30 units of calling time on each.

HT Technologies Phonecard Insider (a publication for the phonecard collector) offered 10 free phonecards to anyone identifying the most stars featured on the card! Sorry, the cut-off date for receipt of entries was 15 September 1996.

Puzzle Set

Featured below are two cards from the 3-card puzzle set of an image of San Francisco's Union Square which is famous for its wonderful shopping and restaurants. This set was taken from artwork by Alexander Chen.

Pin-Ups Proclaim Patriotism!

During the second World War, many of America's young men were far away from home fighting for the freedom and families they believed in. To inspire patrotism many methods were experimented with. One of the most popular was Pin-Up-Girls. Classic Pin-Up art has appeared on wall calendars, posters, magazine illustrations, and other products. A kind of catalogue of covets, the Pin-Up girls inspired regiment forces to preserve the spirit of freedom they believed in.

A combination of barely concealed sexuality and wholesome domestic virtue, SHE had come to represent everything American soldiers were fighting for.

This new series of limited edition Telecards featuring classic art of the Pin-Up girls will spell out P-I-N-U-P when complete. 1000 of each of the set of five cards with a $6 denomination were printed.

"Less Tax, More Snacks"

"Isn't it time to put a REAL fat cat in the White House?", mused the tubby tabby, who says that he would usher in a gentler, kinder, and lazier America. Garfield has his paw on the pulse of America, and promises to abolish Mondays, put a sweat tax on gyms and health clubs, pour millions into the fight against dog breath, and establish the President's Council on Snacking.

On health care reform, Garfield vows to abolish all shots, needles, flea dips and other forms of medical torture. In other words, no cat will be "fixed" under his administration.

ACMI is supporting Garfield in '96 and has issued a chief executive Telecard in his honour. Again, 1000 of this card with a $6 denomination have been printed.

A Star is Born!

Just speaking her name evokes a feeling of innocence combined with sensual allure. Imagine the goddess herself stepping directly over the subway grate, at the precise minute a train is passing. And to the delight of her many fans, Marilyn's infamous white dress floats over her head. Ever the starlet, she just smiles that smile and coos, "Ah, what a relief. Isn't it delicious!"

These photos, made famous by Bernard of Hollywood, have been reproduced on a new series of Telecards from ACMI.

Each Telecard features one letter of Marilyn's last name and when the set is complete, they will spell out M-O-N-R-O-E. Marilyn was truly a marvel of her era, a male fantasy, a female phenomenon! 2000 of this set of $6 phonecards have been printed.

The ACMI Visa & Pre-Paid Telecard

Another first from ACMI, the ACMI Visa Card/Prepaid Telecard! This card has all the advantages you would expect from a credit card, like fast cash at over 500,000 financial institutions and ATMs worldwide, and acceptance at more than 12 million locations.

In addition, the ACMI Visa Card offers exceptional advantages such as a low introductory finance rate, free membership to the Travel Club Network, free membership to the Shopping Club Network, free Automatic Travel Accident Insurance, and credit protection insurance is available.

The ACMI Visa Card also doubles as your ACMI prepaid Telecard!

Astrology Prepaid Telecards

Astrology is basically about you. It has been described as a stairway leading into your deeper self. ACMI has created a set of Astrology Prepaid Telecards, one for each month of the calendar. Each card has an initial offer of 30 readings and can be refreshed for additional readings. These telecards, each represent one of the twelve signs of the Zodiac.

Each astrological sign is like a miniature Book of Knowledge, and all twelve signs give a picture of human beings, our bodies, minds and emotions, and of the surrounding world in which we live.

Discover your destiny with an ACMI prepaid astrology telecard!

by Insider

Telstra is going through many changes at this point in time and I believe that many of these changes will ultimately benefit the phonecard collector. The facts are, that everything that Telstra does nowadays must show a profit to the bottom line to make the 'books' look as good as possible for the eventual privatisation which could occur at any time.

Many services that Telstra presently run, such as the Phonecard Collector Service, will in all probability be outsourced ahead of the main privatisation. This is because Telstra wants to cut its operations back to core business and so the Collector Service is likely to be contracted out very soon.

This particular action will be of great benefit to all collectors. The company ending up with this section of Telstra will promote the hobby of collecting Phonecards by advertising, designing attractive cards, establishing an effective distribution network so that cards are available and promoted as widely as possible, and thereby work towards preventing any third parties damaging the hobby.

Understandably so, Telstra has not contributed as significantly as possible, in a financial sense, to the growth of the hobby because of its over riding need to keep the 'bottom line as black as possible'. It has not promoted the hobby sufficiently in magazines, newspapers and the electronic media to the extent required, so limiting the arrival of new collectors to the hobby. Hopefully, a new marketer of the product will change all that and everyone connected with the hobby will notice an increase in demand at all levels resulting from the promotional activity. We may even see a catalogue produced of all of Telstra's cards.

Another major change to (definitely) occur in the future will be the advent of chip cards. Telstra recently announced that they will be using chip cards which will operate in the phones as well be able to be used for many other purposes, such as transport tickets, etc. When this occurs - tipped to be March/June next year - many more people will be exposed to phonecards and thus a proportion of these new people will begin to collect phonecards, thus expanding the collector base.

A further change, not involving Telstra this time, is the amalgamation of The Australasian Phonecard Monthly and the current New Zealand publication, the New Zealand International Phonecard Collector. The result, the Australia/New Zealand Phonecard Magazine, will be produced in full colour and will be an excellent representative for the hobby. The expanded format devoted to informative articles, the colour reproduction of phonecards (much better than seeing them in black and white) and the diversity of topics from countries all over the world, will all help to make the hobby more attractive to new collectors and to make it more enjoyable for existing collectors.

Phonecard fairs have been attracting increased attendances all around Australia in the last six months and this increase is best seen at the grassroots level. The smaller club fairs are where the newer collectors are being attracted, in ever increasing numbers, due to a combination of excellent organisation on the part of the club, low table fees which encourage dealers to travel to venues further afield (which allows collectors to view a wider range of material than they would normally see at such a venue), and advertising aimed at the local market in the most appropriate local advertising media.

When phonecards first started in Australia we only had three fairs per year! Now we are having three to five per state! The hobby can now support those who wish to collect Australian or world cards, all of a country, or thematically on a wider range of topics. Collectors wanting to collect one card per country have an enormous range, as does that ever increasing number of collectors specialising in collecting all cards from a country other than Australia.

Most obvious would be the demand for countries that have been featured in articles over the last few months in this magazine - Thailand and Papua New Guinea for example. Some dealers are now beginning to stock countries in much greater depth than the one card per country collectors require.

The hobby is showing positive growth signs in many places and the benefits to flow from any outsourcing of the collector Services will surely bring a new growth phase to the hobby.

CLUB & SOCIETY NEWS

I have written to all known Phonenumber Clubs to advise of changes to this section for the Australia New Zealand Phonenumber Magazine.

STAMPEX 1991

In the Club & Society News section of the last issue of APM, I reproduced an article on "Stampex '91". A typing error occurred in this article. The sixth line of the last paragraph should read, "Telecom, as it was then, initially did give permission to overprint the cards". My apologies for the original mistake.
